
AN INVITATION TO JOIN

A peer network for pipeline control rooms

The Control Room Alliance brings controllers, supervisors, compliance professionals and the people who build their systems into one national, operator-led community.

Collaborate. Adapt. Control.

Why join the Alliance?

“Solve once, share with all.” That idea guides our vendor-neutral community. Compare a shift practice with another operator, adapt a useful template or pass on a lesson your team learned at the console.

Controllers and supervisors	Compare approaches to turnover, fatigue and recurring alarms with people who have worked the console.
Compliance and training teams	Discuss how other operators organize records, prepare for inspections and build exercises that reflect actual shifts.
SCADA and OT teams	Hear how changes to displays, alerts and technology affect the people who use them around the clock.
Operations leaders	Bring lessons from outside your organization into conversations about staffing, training and priorities.

A QUESTION TO BRING TO YOUR PEERS

What gets lost at shift change?

A supervisor might share a blank handover sheet and ask how another crew tracks open items. The group can compare where each sheet records an owner and a follow-up time. The supervisor leaves with a specific change to test locally.

What members study

These topics shape the Alliance education program. Each starts with a question controllers, engineers and supervisors can examine together.

Control room management

How would a team walk a reviewer through a shift change? Compare role definitions, training records and the evidence behind a written CRM plan.

Leak detection and integrity

What does a controller need to know when a leak alert appears? Discuss how controllers, field teams and integrity specialists train together.

OT cybersecurity

Who needs to be involved when a planned system change affects the console? Explore the coordination between controllers, SCADA engineers and security teams.

Alarm management

Which alarms keep returning to the shift log? Compare how teams collect controller feedback and document the results of an alarm review.

REGULATORY REFERENCE

PHMSA control room management overview

Join the Alliance

Complete the membership application to introduce yourself to the Alliance. If you would like to discuss a topic or contribute an example from your work, you can also reach the team directly.

MEMBERSHIP APPLICATION

Open the membership application

controlroomalliance.org

Scan the code or select the application link.

Questions about membership?

alianceteam@controlroomalliance.org